SUBJECT:

International Committee of the Red Cross

Mr. Gallopin, Delegate General of the International Committee of the Red Cross, came to see me yesterday evening. He was on his way from Latin America back to Geneva and had been asked by Mr. Boissier, the President of the International Red Cross to convey to us informally the Committee's readiness and desire to help the Secretary-General in any way in its power, should the need arise. I thanked him and promised to convey this kind message.
